25X1

1. a. The TITOGRAD (PODGORICA) (Y 46/N 06) civilian airfield, about 6,600 feet square, was located at the southern town border, near the railroad station. There was a repair hangar and a radio station with two masts, about 33 feet high. Only commercial planes of the BELGRADE-TITOGRAD line landed at the field.

- b. The military airfield was located about 1.5 miles south of FTOTGAD. Leveling work was completed in 1948. Buildings, hangars and other installations were not available.

2. [redacted] confirmed the location of the military airfield, [redacted] the leveled 10,000 x 5,000-foot airfield had no hangars or buildings in late 1948 and that flying was not yet done there.

Comment:

The existence of two airfields near TITOGRAD was previously reported [redacted]. The airfield, located about 6,500 feet southwest of TITOGRAD, is a civilian airfield while the other is a military airfield. The reported size of the civilian airfield agrees with previous reports. There is no concrete runway at the field. According to previous reports, no buildings or concrete runways are available at the military airfield. [redacted]
